Pre-trained-Models with PyTorch

In [ ]:

#by Christopher Harrison

In this lab, you will use pre-trained models to classify between the negative and positive samples; you will be provided with the dataset object. The particular pre-trained model will be resnet18; you will have three questions:

- change the output layer
- train the model
- identify several misclassified samples
  </ul> You will take several screenshots of your work and share your notebook.

- Download Data
- Imports and Auxiliary Functions
- Dataset Class
- Question 1
- Question 2
- Question 3

Estimated Time Needed: 120 min

Download Data

Download the dataset and unzip the files in your data directory, unlike the other labs, all the data will be deleted after you close the lab, this may take some time:

Imports and Auxiliary Functions

The following are the libraries we are going to use for this lab. The `torch.manual_seed()` is for forcing the random function to give the same number every time we try to recompile it.

Dataset Class

This dataset class is essentially the same dataset you build in the previous section, but to speed things up, we are going to use tensors instead of jpeg images. Therefor for each iteration, you will skip the reshape step, conversion step to tensors and normalization step.

Step 2: Set the attribute `requires_grad` to `False` . As a result, the parameters will not be affected by training.

In [18]:

`resnet18` is used to classify 1000 different objects; as a result, the last layer has 1000 outputs. The 512 inputs come from the fact that the previously hidden layer has 512 outputs.

Step 3: Replace the output layer `model.fc` of the neural network with a `nn.Linear` object, to classify 2 different classes. For the parameters `in_features` remember the last hidden layer has 512 neurons.

In [19]:

Print out the model in order to show whether you get the correct answer.

Question 2: Train the Model

In this question you will train your, model:

Step 1: Create a cross entropy criterion function

In [21]:

Step 2: Create a training loader and validation loader object, the batch size should have 100 samples each.

In [22]:

Step 3: Use the following optimizer to minimize the loss

In [23]:

Complete the following code to calculate the accuracy on the validation data for one epoch; this should take about 45 minutes. Make sure you calculate the accuracy on the validation data.
